

Steering and monitoring of a research project in Co-Innovation joint action

- An accountable project leader, appointed by the beneficiary organization, will be responsible for the scientific and research content of the project.
- A steering group will be appointed for the project to act as an advisor.
- In addition to the beneficiary and co-funders, external experts or business representatives may be invited to join the steering group.
- A Business Finland representative will have the right to participate in steering group meetings. An invitation to the meeting and the related material must be submitted to Business Finland in good time before each meeting. Minutes must be taken at the meetings, which must be sent to the Business Finland contact person as well as to the steering group members.
- A report must be submitted via our online service two to three times a year.
- Co-Innovation joint action participants may agree that the research project steering group will also support the follow-up and guidance of the joint action.
