PROJECT
BLACKFIN

Many believe that the path to effective artificial intelligence will be realized by mimicking human intelligence. This thinking is limiting understanding of what AI may be capable of achieving, even in the near future. We believe that when AI systems capable of exhibiting true machine intelligence emerge, they will not behave in a human-like fashion.

In an attempt to understand how such machine intelligence might eventually be applied in the cyber security domain, we have established a research effort named Project Blackfin.
