Have fun learning in Finland

Many people around the world know Finland for our high-quality education. Finland has consistently scored high in the global PISA rankings, but what differentiates Finland from several other high-ranking countries is our education system with comparatively short school days, little focus on homework and exams, preference of experimental learning out of the classroom as well as emphasis on self-direction and critical thinking.

Equality is one of the key cornerstones of the Finnish education system. Our education system offers everyone equal opportunities for schooling and individual support when needed. Our highly educated teachers with high autonomy in their classrooms deserve recognition for their work. Teachers, who normally hold a Master's degree, are highly appreciated in Finland and teacher education remains a popular choice among high school graduates.

The philosophy of continuous learning throughout life is also one of the guiding principles of the Finnish education system. The digital revolution is changing education and future professions, highlighting the importance of continuously learning new skills. The Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU) has recently ranked Finland as the third-best country in the world in terms of how well our education answers future needs*.

The high rankings and unique features of the Finnish education system have attracted a new type of international traveller to Finland: those who travel here to learn about the Finnish education system. Such travellers include education professionals and schoolchildren alike. Their interest is often focused on one of the unique features of the Finnish education system, such as phenomenal and experimental learning or utilising nature as a learning environment.

This manual aims to inspire you to find new educational travel products – whether it be study tours for professionals or educational camps for schoolchildren. Hopefully, reading this manual will result in new collaborations and happy customers.

I would like to wish you success within educational travel and welcome you to Learn Like Never Before in Finland!

Main regions in Finland

Coast & Archipelago

Finland's coast boasts the world's largest archipelago. Old wooden towns, lighthouses, historical manors and stone churches, large national parks stretching over land and sea – this sums up coastal Finland.

The laid-back islander lifestyle and a strong maritime culture are key characteristics of this fascinating area. Beaches, handicraft markets, small-town events, cafés and village shops – Finnish coastal towns are especially lively in the summer months.

Coastal Finland has dozens of secluded lighthouses, many with restaurants and accommodation for travellers, and former ironwork villages that offer a great selection of quaint scenery, art, design and antiques. Also, you can follow the footsteps of the world-famous creator of Moomins, Tove Jansson, whose favourite places can be found around the southern coast.

Finland holds seven Unesco World Heritage sites, of which three can be experienced in the Coastal area.

Helsinki Region

Helsinki, the capital of Finland, is a vibrant seaside city of islands and great green parks. The city has a laid back yet refreshingly active rhythm all at once. Like all capitals around the world, Helsinki is also a melting pot of all kinds of people. It's known for urban street festivals old workers districts which have transformed into hotspots for design.

Helsinki offers something to experience all year round. In the summer it's all about sunshine and outdoors and restaurant terraces bustle with people. Wintertime entails cheerful Christmas markets and holiday atmosphere. In January, the LUX Helsinki light festival enchants with luminous street art installations.

Like the rest of Finland, nature is always close in Helsinki. Take a day trip to the sea fortress of Suomenlinna or one of the many islands off the coast. If the beat of the city seems too hectic, you can have wonderful experiences in nature at the Nuuskio National Park.

Lakeland

Finland is not known as the land of a thousand lakes for nothing. The Lakeland is a geographical wonder, a blue labyrinth of lakes, islands and forests. This is the largest lake district in Europe, with 200 000 cottages for slowing down and relaxing.

The largest of the lakes – a Finnish national treasure – is Lake Saimaa. The green forests and blue lakes offer a wonderful outdoor experience. Many national parks offer untouched forests and pristine lakes combined with modern services. Head out for a hike or enjoy an overnight stay in a tent or cottage. There are many old industrial cities that have become centres for culture and events, such as Tampere, Lahti, Outokumpu and Verla.

In the summer, Finns retreat to lakeside cottages. We spend our holidays with friends and families away from the hustle and bustle of the city.

Lapland

Contrasts are a key factor in the allure of Finnish Lapland. In Lapland, you can experience not four but in fact eight distinctive seasons: from warm summers filled with around-the-clock light to frosty winter days when the sun refuses to rise above the horizon.

Lapland is home to perhaps the most well-known Finn – Santa Claus himself. Originally from Korvatunturi, a remote fell in Eastern Lapland nearby the Russian border, Santa now lives in Rovaniemi and can be met all year round.

This northernmost part of the EU has a number of outdoor resorts, just minutes away from the peace and quiet of the wilderness. They offer unique possibilities for any kind of skiing and cycling in addition to many other outdoor activities. Winter invites you to try out snowmobiling or sledding, while snow-free seasons are popular among hikers. During the summer and autumn, you can pick your meal straight from the nature, as the Lappish wilderness is bursting with wild herbs mushroom and berries, including our famous cloudberries. These bright orange berries, mostly found on swamps, are a true northern superfood.
