The quickest way to slow down

You might already know that Finland is the land of a thousand lakes, but to be more precise, we're the land of hundreds of thousands of lakes. And since most of Finland is covered with forests, it's pretty safe to say that our heart is truly made of water and wood. After all, there is no scenery more Finnish than a summer cottage by the lake. But it's about much more than just an iconic view. Nature is a huge part of our identity, and a significant source of wellbeing for millions of Finns.

The western Lakeland is all of the things mentioned above, but at the same time so much more. We boast a powerful industrial heritage in the area, and the history is still visible in the architecture and the various picturesque sights in the cities. Most of Finland's industrial history originates from the surrounding nature – timber and paper, textile, glass, water powering factories, natural materials and fabrics which are then used to create the world-famous Finnish design.

The urban life in the western Lakeland is not all about fostering the history and origins, it's also the beat of the city, the vivid urban life that the inhabitants get to enjoy, the big festivals attracting audiences, artists and performers from all around the world. The thing that makes our area really stand out, is the fact that even though we delight in everything that the urban city life has to offer, the root of it all, the nature, is still so close, everywhere we turn.

It's easy to find peace and quiet, even right in the centre of the town: the green parks, the forest areas and the lakeside are always close by. Diving into the genuine Finnish life is made easy – not far from the city centre, one can easily rent a cottage by the lake, take a cruise on the lovely blue lakes, walk in the fresh air of the forests or enjoy the original Finnish sauna experience at any of the public saunas in your area. We can happily admit that we have the best of both the silence of the nature and the urban beat of the city centre!

Welcome to the western Lakeland!
